

MIND THE GAP

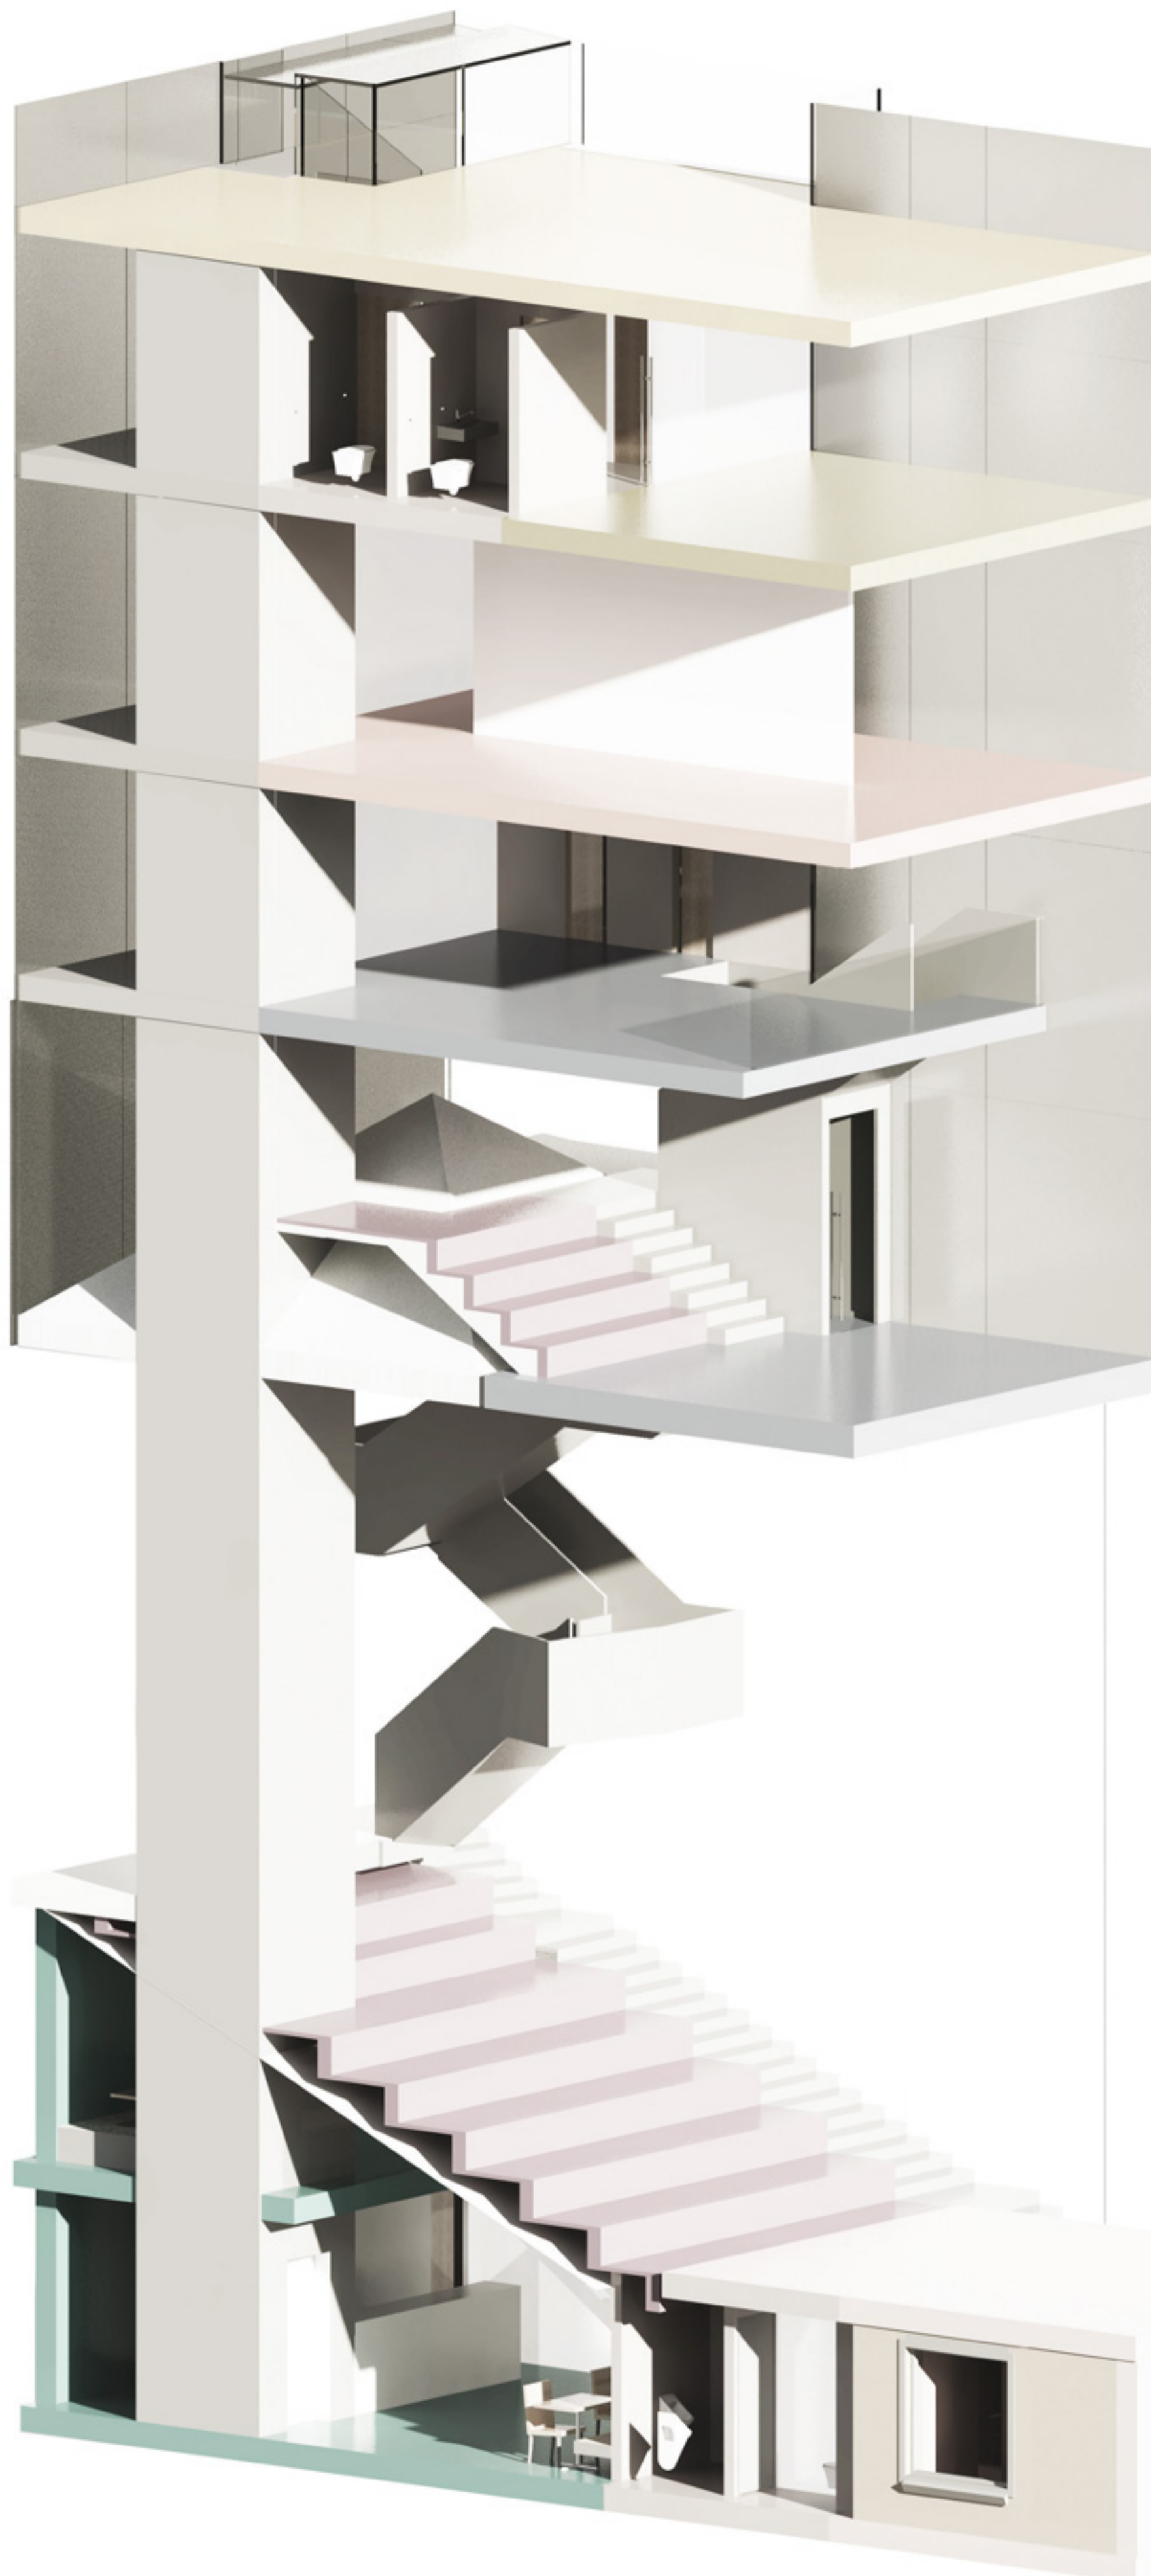

mind on:

Every place has its past. As the time floats around place turns. Again and again. But what about the footprints left there? Are we gonna literally rip them down and forgot that anything has been there? There is no need to do such things. But sometimes when there is no other option absence of something creates whole new dimension of space. Not because it is not there but because we cought it there - as a memory, absence of something that passed and what will last after another footprint would shown.

roof terrace offers great view on old town Bratislava with such highlights as Bratislava castle or bridge SNP and many others studio

is supposed for all the people who are interested in arts, depends on schedule everyone can easily find his lectures for music, art and crafts behind the studio there are restrooms and dressing room for attendants of dancing classes multipurpose dancing studio the largest space in this house of arts, it makes variable space with special flexible wall panel when it is turned parallel to the west wall whole floor could be used as a big gallery with more space on the panel for exhibiting when it is turned perpendicularly it divides space in two separated studios regularly the wall is covered inside the west wall for open space for dance, performance, etc upper gallery

this space could be used for smaller events such as a discussions or speeches or just usual events for usual people this level contains also restrooms lower gallery is very specific place mented for public such as book reading, presenting, meetings, small auditorium and the spaces on the "roof" are great place for kids to play also it might be the place for jam sessions or any other musical event gape

the (empty) heart of the building, place where the previous building was contains only the stairs to upper levels and to auditorium there is entrance for disabled here auditorium

main space for public events, meetings, or just resting in the middle of hot summer, it makes this gap unique because of the open space there where everybody is welcome to take a seat and watch some performance turning right now on the stage, watching hockey on big screen or some movie

open minded for young actors, allows easily to collaborate with audience in free time nice place for gathering people, playing games coffee shop

place where you can find great coffee with nice atmosphere under the stairs, also contains public toilets and elevator for entering the lower floors for disabled also contain dressing room for actors
